Indonesia supports capacity building in space law and reiterates the importance of sustainable capacity building in the field of outer space, especially for the developing countries. On that note, it is important for the developing countries to get access to the transfer of technology from space faring nations in order to develop their capacity in outer space. International cooperation through training, education, and technical assistance, also important in supporting the effort of developing outer space regime and to overcome the complexity of issue that may arises in the future.

In this regard, Indonesia has participated in United Nations/Turkey/ Asia-Pacific Space Cooperation Organization Conference on Space Law and Policy, held in Istanbul, Turkey, from 23 to 26 September 2019. Indonesia also has participated in the virtual holding of the United Nations/Economic Commission for Africa Conference on Space Law and Policy which has provided an opportunity to increase the capacity of space law and policy in developing countries amid pandemic conditions, held online from 8 to 10 December 2020.

We would like to thank the United Nations and countries for giving us the opportunity to attend the conference.
